For JPRS IC's

November 1982 marks the passage of 25 years since the U.S. Government initiated its substantial effort to translate and disseminate information from foreign language publications by establishing the U.S. Joint Publications Research Service. From the beginning, the success of this venture has depended on the skills, professionalism and dedication of people such as yourself, hundreds of whom handle the daily work of translating, editing and typing the vast quantities of material processed by JPRS.

On behalf of all of us at FBIS, I wish to congratulate you on this auspicious occasion and wish you continued success for the future.

Director
